Proposition 13 Claims Cadets

END OF THE LINE

By TERRY DAVENPORT

One of the programs that was eliminated by Proposition 13 was a proven, low-cost method of screening prospective police officers, according to the Daly City Police Department.

The cadet program's purpose was to familiarize youths with police work, while allowing the department to decide whether they would make suitable officers.

Five police cadets, aged 19 to 21, were among the 212 Daly City city workers who lost their jobs July 28 because the City Council decided to eliminate all temporary and part-time workers.

Police Chief David Hansen explained, "In the city's eyes, they are temporary employes, because they are not in the civil service structure."

But in Hansen's opinion, the five young men were an integral part of his department. There was a slight waver in the usually unsentimental police chief's voice as he handed the cadets certificates of appreciation and told them, "If you ever need a recommendation, you've certainly got it from us."

The five cadets — Pat Migagishima, Brian Hyland, John Moura, Gene Kischmischian and Mike Bruncardi — had been working at the department for as long as 19 months.

Of the 28 cadets Daly City has hired since June 1968, 10 subsequently became police officers for the department and six are still there.

One is Sgt. Terry Hannebeck, who set a record when he was hired on his 21st birthday. For a few days, he was the youngest police officer in California.

Hannebeck said he found his experience as a cadet extremely helpful.

"I think it takes most police officers about two years to learn their job. That period is cut to about seven or eight months if the person has been a cadet and is familiar with local problems and the area," he remarked.

At the same time he was hired, Hannebeck said, another recruit who had grown up in Washington was hired. "He had a much tougher time relating to the area," he said.

He noted that the cadet program also is helpful in targeting persons who eventually will prove unsuitable for police officers. Of the 10 cadets hired by the Daly City department, only one is no longer in police work.

Hansen said Daly City began the program along with other police departments in order to develop a manpower pool.

Daly City currently receives about 300 applications for each officer opening, but police work wasn't always so popular.

According to Hansen, "The idea of the program is to have the people exposed to every facet of police work, except for law enforcement . . . they get to look at the occupation and we get to look at them."

He admitted it wasn't possible to give the cadets a truly well rounded experience. They spent most of their time in the records department.

Lights Won't Be Dimmed

Street lighting in unincorporated sections of San Mateo County, threatened to be reduced drastically in the immediate wake of Jarvis-Gann, is likely to remain at current levels this year.

That optimistic prediction was made before the Board of Supervisors Thursday by Vic Sanders, deputy county engineer.

Sanders told the board at its second day of a third and final round of budget review sessions that a special county road fund could be tapped to help fund the county's 11 lighting districts.

He said it also may be possible to collect special service charges from residents in lighting districts.

These two funding mechanisms, Sanders said, are under review by the district attorney's office.

In late June Assistant County Engineer Robert Frame warned that the property tax limitations of Proposition 13 would force a 60 percent reduction in street lighting serving the following districts: Bel Aire, Belmont, Colma, El Granada, Emerald Lake, Enchanted Hills, La Honda, Menlo Park, Montara, Pescadero, and Ravenswood.

These districts, plus flood control and sewer and maintenance control, are governed and managed by the county, which levies a property tax rate to fund them.

Frame had indicated that he was working with officials of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to plan selective street lighting cutbacks on the assumption state surplus money would not be allocated to these special districts.

His assumption was correct. The county's share of surplus funds for special districts, estimated at slightly more than $2 million, falls about 25 percent short of what special police and fire districts need to maintain current levels of service.

The law governing disbursement of these state surplus funds mandates that first priority be given to police and fire.

But Sanders, with the aid of the district attorney's office, discovered that special road fund monies could be shifted to buttress the sagging budgets of the special lighting districts.

Sanders advised the board that the cost of operating the 11 districts last year totalled $220,000. Proposition 13 reduces the

JUHSD To Pick Top 54

Popularity will be the basis for choosing 54 adult education classes in the Jefferson Union High School District that the district will help fund in 1978-79, according to a proposal offered Monday.

The state surplus has come to the rescue of 100 other district classes. These 100 courses, which range from English for the foreign-born to art courses in nursing homes, fall into "protective categories" that are completely funded by the state.

But the district can afford to offer only 54 other courses, Adult Education Director Louis Martin told the trustees. He said he will select those that had the best enrollment and best attendance in 1977-78.

Martin is thinking about charging $12 per person for each 12-week class not funded by the state. Seniors would pay $6 each. Martin said those funds would pay 30 to 40 percent of the amount it costs the district to run the classes. Participants would have to pay the entire fee at the first class meeting.

Each class must have 15 members by the first meeting or it will be cancelled, he said.

Asked by Trustee Jane Powell whether a group of 15 interested citizens could pay fully for an additional class, Martin said he would have to consider that idea.

Supervisor Sees No Conflict In Insurance Arrangement

By TERRY DAVENPORT

County Supervisor James Fitzgerald said Friday there is no conflict of interest involved n the insurance deal his company has with Resources, Engineering and Management (REM) of South San Francisco.

Fitzgerald is one of three members of the board of directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District and was instrumental in helping REM land a contract with the district for overseeing construction of its new sewage treatment plant.

Robert Bernicchi, REM part-owner, said his company has earned about $1,370,600 since 1973 under that contract.

He confirmed that REM has been insured with J. V. Fitzgerald Insurance Co. of San Bruno, which Fitzgerald partially owns, for two years.

But Bernicchi and Fitzgerald insist that the insurance agreement has not resulted in a conflict of interest.

The insurance policy in question was put to the test July 18 at 8:35 p.m., The insurance policy in question was put to the test July 18 at 8:35 p.m., when South San Francisco firemen began battling a huge blaze at REM's building.

Originally, damage to the building and its contents was estimated at $350,000 but the revised estimate by the South San Francisco Fire Department is $250,000.

Inspector Gil Castro of that department said Friday that the cause of the fire is under investigation for arson. "We have no suspects yet," he remarked.

Bernicchi said his agent for the insurance is Fitzgerald's son and business partner, Chris.

Fitzgerald agreed, saying, "He (Chris) has complete authority. He runs the business and the commissions are his." That has been the case, Fitzgerald remarked, since 1972. "I have't been active in the business for about eight years," he added.

Bernicchi pointed out that the insurance policy REM carries with J. V. Fitzgerald Insurance Co. is small potatoes compared to other insurance policies

Gonella Urges Quick Approval Of Final Budget

Polite rebuffs were tossed at trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District Monday night after they unanimously adopted a tentative budget of $16.1 million for 1978-79.

The comments, made by just five of the 46 audience members were much milder than those made several weeks ago when it appeared that the trustees would have to chop $5 million out of the budget.

The effects of Proposition 13 were softened when the state Legislature doled out the $5 billion state surplus. The JUHSD district's share is expected to reduce the loss to just $1.25 million.

Superintendent Floyd Gonella listed six criteria used in figuring the budget reductions: making cuts as remote as possible from student instruction, maintaining regular employees, requiring all divisions to shoulder cuts equally, returning previously frozen salaries and hiring policies to the budget, rehiring temporary teachers whenever possible and keeping a reserve of $175,000.

He stressed that the budget adopted by the board is tentative and urged the trustees to approve the final budget sooner than the Aug. 31 deadline required by law.

Among the cuts listed in the tentative budget are:

- Eliminating five bus stops, $40,000 savings.
- Not hiring an associate superintendent to fill a vacancy, saving $30,545 plus benefits. There would be one associate superintendent instead of two.
- Eliminating one of two psychologists, saving $17,316 plus benefits; reducing funds for career guidance supervisors from

Doelger Leaves An Estate of $8.5 Million

Bay Area builder Henry Doelger, who died last week in Italy, was worth $8.5 million, according to his will filed for probate in San Mateo County Superior Court Tuesday.

Doelger left $5 million in a charitable fund which will benefit animals, people and research.

Included is the Peninsula Humane Society, which was designated to receive $20,000 annually for 50 years.

Doelger, 82, was a self-made millionaire who built hundreds of homes in Daly City and San Francisco.

According to legal documents, Doelger's real estate holdings are valued at $500,000 and his personal worth $8 million. He made $500,000 annually from his personal and real property.

Doelger named 60 relatives, employees, friends and foundations to inherit his estate.

He left a substantial amount to his wife, Thelma.

He bequeathed $500,000 to his son, Michael Doelger, 36, San Mateo, and $1 million to his daughter, Mrs. Susan Gaidano, 32, of Larkspur. Her inheritance, though, is controlled by a trust which specifies the manner of disbursement.

Sums ranging from $20,000 to $150,000 were bequeathed to other friends and relatives, including $40,000 to Doelger's maid, Thelma Gagan.

Other local bequests included $20,000 to the Boy Scouts in Daly City.

The trust will benefit these agencies to differing degrees: Stanford University's School of Medicine, University of Santa Clara (for needy students), Marin County Humane Society, Peninsula Humane Society, Healdsburg Animal Shelter, Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City, and St. Ignatius College Preparatory School.

The will also bequeathed one-time payments of $25,000 to Congregation Beth Israel-Judea in San Francisco and $50,000 to Our Lady of Mercy Church in Daly City.

Colma Will Add Personnel

Most cities in California are slashing personnel in response to Proposition 13, but the Colma City Council voted this week to add a clerk-typist to the police department at a cost of $700 per month.

Colma has not felt the effects of Prop. 13 because it has no property tax. The town survives on sales taxes generated by its large commercial enterprises.

It was no surprise when the council decided to postpone a discussion on general plan changes. The city

State Accuses Title Company Of Illegal Use of Funds

By JANET PARKER

A well-known San Mateo County title insurance company has been charged with illegally using more than $74,000 in policyholders' trust funds and making more than $8,700 in illegal kickbacks to Bay Area banks and real estate sellers.

The state Insurance Department has served representatives of Stewart Title of the Peninsula, a Redwood City-based firm with five branches in this county.

Stewart Title could be fined more than $40,000 and have its title insurance licenses suspended up to one year as a result of the allegations, according to Insurance Department spokesman Robert Mackin.

Investigator Dennis Ward said the department first received information concerning Stewart Title's escrow accounts which led to a six-month investigation culminating in all the charges on Friday.

The department's accusation alleges that Stewart Title raided its policyholder's accounts when it made the following payments from its escrow accounts:

- $40,000 to Marc Fratessa, son of the firm's former Daly City office manager, Leo "Bud" Fratessa, for the purchase of property.
- $24,126 to San Mateo County for taxes on property owned by Stonegate Ridge Properties of San Francisco and Mann Investment Co. of Delaware.
- $7,051 to pay off a promissory held by another real estate salesman, Peter Lofrano, and his wife Louise of South San Francisco, allegedly creating an escrow account imbalance for 50 days and another $4,000 to Lofrano, a debt that lasted for an alleged 180 days.

California law, according to Mackin, prohibits the

Merchants Protest Parking Bails

Members of the Mission Merchants Association have vehemently protested a proposal to raise parking violation bails but they could not decide this week whether the installation of some 12-minute parking meters would help or hinder their businesses.

Meeting Thursday at Serra Bowl in Daly City, the 34 merchants became incensed when Daly City Mayor William Schumacher explained that the Municipal Court of the Northern Judicial District has adopted higher bail schedules, including raising the fee for a parking violation from $2 to $5.

"This hasn't gone into effect yet. We want your reaction," Schumacher said.

The reaction was furious. One merchant protested that the higher fee would persuade shoppers to go to large shopping centers, where parking is plentiful and free.

Another fumed that the increase would result in the death of the "Hill."

Two men said they had seen 100,000 forms at the South San Francisco courthouse already printed with the higher $5 bail fee.

The merchants agreed that they would have to get busy if they were to forestall the increase.

Among the other increases the Municipal Court has adopted are $10 fees for overtime and overnight parking. Excessive acceleration violation would be charged at $50.

At a recent meeting the Daly City Council decided it must concur with the increases before they will go into effect.

The merchants were mixed in their reaction to a report by Edward Lyons, administrative assistant to the city manager, that three Mission Street merchants have applied for 12-minute parking meters in front of their businesses.

One woman protested, "I haven't been able to go to

Gliding Victim Succumbs

A 25-year-old carpenter who suffered a fractured neck July 6 when his hang glider stalled and dove onto the beach at Fort Funston just north of Daly City died Thursday morning while he was talking to a doctor, the coroner's office reports.

According to Deputy Coroner Steve Hortin, Robert Waterfall of San Francisco was flown to Peninsula Hospital by a Coast Guard helicopter shortly before 7 p.m., July 6.

Waterfall apparently dove head first onto the beach, striking a rock, Hortin reported.

San Francisco firemen climbed down a cliff to give the injured man first aid, and summoned the Coast Guard helicopter.

Waterfall had undergone surgery, and had appeared to be recovering when he died suddenly, Hortin said.

Waterfall is survived by his father in Laguna Hills.

THE DALY City Dolphins, frustrated by the closing of Westmoor pool in August, have wrapped up their program with a busy weekend.

Friday evening the aquatic club sponsored by third annual Daly City Swim Meet and on Sunday members and their families had a team picnic at McNear Beach in Marin.

The closing of the pool for the month of August has created problems for the young competitors who swim daily to keep in shape for meets. Mrs. Terry DeMartini reports that the swimmers are frantically seeking pools where, individually, they can work out and keep in shape for renewed competitions in September when, hopefully, Westmoor pool will be reopened.

"Very dangerous invasion of local government autonomy" by the state was decried Friday night by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-Menlo Park.

Gregorio spoke to the San Mateo County Council of Mayors meeting in San Bruno.

"The state is almost lethally attaching strings — onerous burdens — on local government," he said. "It is a very dangerous invasion of local autonomy to say whatever we do, you've got to do too."

Gregorio, who is up for re-election to the 10th District Senate seat, will face the challenge of Republican Marz Garcia in November.

Gregorio told the mayors and councilmen that the purpose of state bailout actions in the wake of Proposition 13 was to help local agencies get through the first year of fiscal difficulties so they would have a breathing spell. In this way, he said, these agencies could plan carefully for "substantially lower funding levels.

"The philosophy was to hold the line for one year and say to local government, 'you lost seven billion dollars. We'll give you a portion of the state surplus so that you may have the opportunity to maintain some of the basic services and to determine priorities in the long run.'"

However, he said, the attachment of conditions to the bailout funds constitutes a serious infringement on local decision-making power and there is more to come.

"If you think you don't have local autonomy now. . ."

Asked what kind of preparation is going on in Sacramento to face the problems of the 1979-80 fiscal year, Gregorio replied, "I see very little.

"We've still got a lot of very terrified people in Sacramento, regarding this whole issue."

Mayor John Condon of San Mateo told Gregorio that San Mateo may just have a few strings of its own. He said that the city has been pondering the rejection of half a million dollars in aid, sending it back to the state.

However, he said, one idea is to only send it back on the condition that the state use it to correct the "disgraceful condition of the Highway 101-92 interchange."

Said Gregorio, "That's a delightful twist."

Pacifica Coed To State Board

Sixteen-year-old Donna Sims of Pacifica has been named the state's student representative to the state Board of Education. She will be the only student sitting on the board in 1978-79.

Miss Sims was selected by student leaders who met at a conference of the California Association of Student Councils last weekend. She was one of eight contenders for the position.

After hearing the candidates' speeches and caucusing with other students, the youths at the conference were permitted to cast one vote per high school. Some 300 high schools from throughout the state were represented.

Miss Sims, who will be a senior at Oceana High School in Pacifica this fall, is a straight-A student who recently completed a term as student representative to the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District.

She also has served on the student advisory board which advises the student representative to the Jefferson district and was president of the Human Relations Council at her school.

Miss Sims is a scholarship student at the San Francisco Ballet School, where she is practicing ballet four hours a day this summer in addition to working 20 to 30 hours per week at a fashion store.

She is scheduled to meet several members of the state Department of Education Monday in Sacramento. In August she will be briefed for two days on business of the board.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Yolanda's Aug. Special Only $4

If you enjoyed the Filet of Sole Almondine dinner special at YOLANDA'S last month, then you're going to love the August special of Roast Beef for the low price of $4. Served family-style, the dinner includes soup, salad or pasta, two vegetables, French bread, and a complimentary glass of wine. Chef Jim Castro has scored another hit. . . . Tune requests is the business of attractive ROSITA, who is a master of the piano at JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant, Redwood City. The talented entertainer will play any type of music you like from 9:30 p.m., Wednesdays through Sundays . . . MURRAY LEHR knew that San Francisco is a good operatown, but even he was astonished by the success of his new Lehr's Bocce Opera Room, adjoining Lehr'S GREENHOUSE garden restaurant. It's attracting wall-to-wall crowds Wednesday through Saturday evenings and Mario Pieroni's singers are getting standing ovations. Dinner patrons at Lehr's Greenhouse get free admission to the Bocce Room . . . The festive Sunday brunch at ROSE-BUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," is a great way to get your Sunday off to a delicious start. Begin with an eye-opening cocktail such as Rosebud's flavorful fresh banana or strawberry daiquiri, then feast on imaginative dishes such as Hangtown Fry or Omelette Mayfair.

For that special dinner date, jot down in your little black book THE MOONRAKER, a classy continental restaurant in Rockaway Beach overlooking the Pacific Ocean. The menu, service and view are smashing. . . . LA PINATA restaurant in downtown Burlingame is as festive as the game after which it was named. It is a Mexican tradition to hang a pinata, made of papier-mache in the form of animals and stuffed with gifts and candy, from the ceiling at Christmas holiday-time for the pleasure of children. First blindfolded, children are given a stick which is used to beat the pinata until gifts fall to the floor. . . . Every Wednesday night is "family-style dinner night" at TILLIE'S LIL' FRANKFURT restaurant in Moss Beach. The complete dinner is an "all you can eat" affair. Also includes dessert and a glass of wine. Tillie's features German and continental cuisine.

FAIR ATTRACTION

The sensational Duane Dancers are "Showtime '78" attractions, along with Sunshade 'n' Rain, Dirk Arthur, Hank Garcia and Jack Fisher's Orchestra in the Fiesta Bowl of the San Mateo County Fair.

Restaurant Raves From Vince's Diners

The LICATA family deserves restaurant raves for maintaining food and service excellence at their VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant seven days a week. Whether your choice is lunch, dinner or a between-meal snack, the table wait during peak hours is short and the food is well worth it. The nearby Fish Depot offers a fine selection for the home table.....A new program has been introduced at the RODEWAY INN, South San Francisco. Every Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m., you can enjoy oysters on the half shell, clams on a half shell, marinated scallops, cracked crab claws, and cooked prawns in a shell all for $1.99, with the purchase of your favorite cocktail in the Golden Rooster Lounge.....The KING'S TABLE in Redwood City is famous for its bountiful buffet of delicious foods, but many patrons come in just for the barbecued spare ribs. They're tender, meaty and baked in a secret barbecue sauce created by Owners NORM and FERN LARSON.....A new gourmet treat for seafood lovers at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, is Salmon en Croute (fresh salmon topped with a pear marinated in Amaretto almond liqueur, then wrapped in a puff pastry shell and baked). James Auburn IV of the famed California Culinary Academy created the exclusive dish for PHIL LEHR.

Beat the crowds and dine early at the BOAR'S HEAD (San Mateo and Daly City), where an "Early Bird Special" features a choice of fresh fish, Marinated Chicken and prime rib for just $4.95 from 4 to 7 p.m. Dinners include a tureen of soup, trip to the salad bar, bread and your choice of baked potato, French fries, corn or long grain and wild rice. Served Sunday through Friday in San Mateo and Monday through Thursday in Daly City.....Just about time for ENRICO ROMANO, Pacifica's Italian food wizard, to take off on another big game hunting trip. Hope he brings back a moose head, such as adorns the backbar wall of his ROMANO'S restaurant, for this scribe.....MEL CICERO, co-owner of BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno, can usually be seen any afternoon mingling with his guests and joining friends at the bar for friendly conversation. He is also busy behind the scenes, co-ordinating deliveries of goods and assisting his crew in any capacity.....Among the much-selected salads served at BEARDSLEY'S, on Burlingame's Broadway, are Tomato Stuffed with Shrimp or Crab and Avocado Stuffed with Shrimp and Crab. Crab Louies, of course. BankAmericard, VISA and Master Charge are honored. .....The waiters at L'AUBERGE French restaurant are show people at heart. Waiter David Cohen, who lived not far from the same part of France that Owner LOUIS FRUTSCHI hails from, demonstrates his proficiency when preparing special dishes at tableside, and the dining patrons love it. .....ERIC MAUSSER of the BLACK HORSE suggests you sign up now for their 49ers football bus trips to all home games at Candlestick Park. $3.50 per person. Now open from 10 a.m. on Sundays. Serving lunch and dinners. "Happy Hour" daily from 4 to 7 p.m. banquet facilities.

D.C. Producer Does Stockholder Show

Inocencio Multivision/Films of San Francisco assisted Crown Zellerback Corp. with a one-hour multimedia presentation for 300 stockholders during the international firm's recent annual meeting.

Charles Denton, Director of Internal Corporate Communications for Crown-Zellerbach, retained Producer David Inocencio, a Daly City resident, who maintains a staff and studio on Pier Three, The Embarcadero.

Inocencio's job was to provide suitable graphics to illustrate the script, select appropriate slides from thousands of existing visuals in the firm's files and to shoot another dozen new photographs. According to Inocencio, who also synchronized manual operations of the show's Electrasonic equipment, he presently is transferring the entire show onto videotape for reshowing at a later date.

CAPTURE Wins Anti-Crime Grant

Citizens' Crime Prevention, Inc., has been awarded a grant of $188,906 for 18 months of operation from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration in Washington, D.C. CAPTURE, a county-wide organization that has specialized in crime prevention education and training for over three years, received the grant under the federal Community Anti-Crime Program and will use the money to initiate two new programs in crime prevention for the elderly and for school-aged children.

Cornelius Cooper of the LEAA and formerly with the Burlingame office of LEAA, made the announcement.

The CAPTURE office is in the Bayview Federal Savings Building at 2121 El Camino Real, Suite 602, San Mateo. Citizen crime prevention programs already operating in San Mateo County include Home Alert and Neighborhood Watch, Operation Identification, self-protection for women and seniors, and community education.

For more information on any CAPTURE program, visit the office weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or call 573-1445.

Cadets

with the same rigorous procedures as police officers. Assistant Chief Richard Sims said, "They undergo the same background examination as regular officers. They must meet the physical, mental and moral qualifications."

That means, for example, that their height had to be at least 5-foot-6, although Hansen said he doesn't agree with that restriction.

Cadets had to be 18 to 21 years and full-time college students studying the police field. They were paid $3.25 per hour and worked 20 hours per week. The average cadet stayed with the department two years. One was a woman.

The cadets were not permitted to carry weapons, but they did wear uniforms. They were required to change into the uniforms at the station, so that they weren't lured into some police action outside of work. Hansen explained that one uniformed cadet in another state lost his life in an off-cuty incident.

Hansen stressed that Daly City's is just one of many police departments losing the cadet program due to Proposition 13. In fact, other effects of the property tax initiative on his department are more severe.

"I think we need 107 sworn personnel. We had 97. Now we've got 87," he remarked.

What Hansen finds tragic is the fact that such a low-cost, successful program fell victim to Proposition 13. With the five cadets gone, much higher-paid officers will be stuck with more clerical duties.

On top of that, Hansen said the last group of cadets was the best his department ever had.

"If we got the program back, we would want them back first," he remarked.

the bank in 12 minutes. I think the whole idea is ridiculous."

Other speakers pointed out that 12-minute meters are beneficial to some merchants.

Lyons said that the three applications had come from a florist, a grocery chain store and a bakery.

"We don't know whether this is an individual thing or the tip of an iceberg," he remarked, adding that he wanted the merchants to be aware that the city is interested in their reaction.

Reaching no consensus, the merchants asked Lyons to return with a specific plan regarding installation of 12-minute meters.

Other business:

• Mission Merchants President Zack Zacharias asked members to attend more City Council meetings. He noted that someone had advocated raising business license fees at the last meeting and that few merchants were present.

• Mayor Schumacher said he could'nt understand why Assemblyman Louis Papan, D-Daly City, had sponsored a bill (AB 1853) that apparently gives the California Department of Transportation a better claim to Southern Pacific's right-of-way in Daly City.

"Perhaps this association could direct a letter to Mr. Papan regarding their interests in this extension," he said.

In the past the merchants have opposed the extension of the BART system deeper into San Mateo County.

• Schumacher said sewer service charges will be collected by the county tax collector after August.

Budget

$13,205 to $9,904; chopping funds for resource center aides from $95,937 to $71,600; and curtailing funding of curriculum planning substitutes from $7,000 to $3,500.

• The district would save $15,008 by not supplying towels to students, who would have to supply their own.

• Funds set aside for overtime work would be halved from $16,000 to $8,000.

• Payments for car mileage to administrators and teachers who must travel on school business would be reduced from $14,960 to $12,264.

• The entire amount budgeted for co-curricular field trips ($3,355) would be eliminated.

• The freshman football program funding of $3,300 would be omitted.

• The $47,000 allocated for building maintenance would be reduced by 10 percent.

• The entire sum set aside for special audio-visual materials ($3,300) would be deleted.

In addition, the district saved $83,752 by not holding summer school this year. A surplus in the cafeteria account results in a $40,000 saving.

Gonella suggested some additions to the budget to make it more palatable, namely:

• Allocating $15,000 to help defray the cost of making school facilities available to community groups.

• Paying Pacifica's Youth Service Bureau $6,700 for on- and off-campus counseling.

• To help employees now assigned extra work, setting aside several funds for hourly workers.

Gonella hotly defended administrative salaries as money well spent. Anticipating criticism of cuts in co-curricular programs, he suggested forming a committee to report on these after-school activities.

Audience members declared that they would prefer to have budget cuts made as far away from students as possible. They lightly chastised the board for not making the budget easier to understand and dwelled on what they termed the document's "inconsistencies."

Representing the "Save Our Schools" movement organized by Local No. 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers, William Gray praised the district staff for providing financial documents to the group.

The teachers held two meetings in an attempt to provide community feedback on the budget.

"I am not being critical. I am simply questioning," Gray said, as he launched into a detailed explanation of how different budget categories appeared to have been overbudgeted and underbudgeted.

For example, he pointed out that pupil transportation had been budgeted 43 percent higher than the amount that actually was spent last year.

Although just $132.40 was spent on outside repairs last year, he said $7,571 is earmarked for those repairs in the tentative budget for 1978-79.

Gray asked why extra help was proposed for some employees while others were forced to do additional work without added help.

"We are cutting some areas 100 percent while some other areas that were not cut (in the proposed budget) were overbudgeted," he said.

Another Save Our Schools representative, Thomas Fitzpatrick, warned that citizens who see cuts being made in their children's education will be tempted to send their children to private schools.

AFT local President Marcy Ballard asked the board to simplify the budget and to include the amount spent under each category for the last two or three years.

She criticized proposed cuts in special education, psychology help and speech therapy.

John Gilmore said he was very distressed about the reductions proposed for co-curricular programs.

Mike Dunlop challenged Gonella's statement that there would not be any cuts in personnel under the tentative budget. Dunlop said the budget would mean cutting five persons out of the transportation department.

He also criticized what he called "inconsistencies" in the budget, noting that it doesn't make sense to keep sports programs at full steam, but not to provide towels or to keep the fields well maintained.

The trustees agreed to begin discussing the budget tonight at their regular meeting, which begins at 8 p.m. at Jefferson High School's Little Theater, Daly City.

They also set a special budget meeting for Aug. 7 at 8 p.m. at Oceana High School in Pacifica.

Gonella asked them to consider adoption of the final budget Aug. 15.

title company from doing anything with escrow monies other than hold them in strict trust.

The state Insurance Code also prohibits kickbacks as an inducement to obtaining title insurance business through, in this case, real estate salespersons.

The accusation, filed by Insurance Commissioner Wesley J. Kinder, claims Stewart Title violated the anti-kickback provisions of the code by maintaining interest-free accounts in six San Mateo County banks.

The accounts at no cost to the bank, Mackin explained, served as an inducement to send business to Stewart Title Co.

It also charges that the company paid at least $2,000 in entertainment expenses above that allowed by the department in efforts to gain title insurance business, supplied free title reports to real estate salesmen while charging consumers a fee for that same report, and provided free escrow service to real estate salespersons but not to homebuyers.

And, the accusation alleges, Stewart Title included a so-called "processing fee" of from $15 to $50 on closing statements to homebuyers without identifying the charges as an extra fee to the real estate broker on top of his commission.

Mackin said the anti-kickback provisions of the state code were implemented because of widespread "reverse competition" in title insurance business.

In other words, Mackin explained, the individual buying or selling a home seldom shops for a title company when the transaction is made. Instead, the real estate salesperson makes the insurance choice and that's where the kickback can come in, Mackin related.

Stewart Title Co. senior vice president James Adair said this morning that the firm already has taken steps to eliminate any code violations.

Most of the allegations, he pointed out, stem from the Daly City branch of Stewart Title Co., and that entire branch has been closed since the problems with escrow accounts were first noticed in November.

"The money has been recovered," Adair said. "And all the management and personnel responsible for these charges have been terminated."

has delayed revision of its general plan for 28 years.

However, council members did discuss some proposed zoning amendments, including:

• Combining two different commercial zones into one C zone. Building in commercial zones would be regulated when use permits were sought.

• Designating one G zone to cover cemeteries, agriculture and recreational land uses.

• Converting G-2 zones to R (residential zones) which would not require a use permit.

REM has with a San Francisco broker.

Chris Fitzgerald said the policy he wrote for REM insures the building at 343 El Camino Real in South San Francisco for about $156,000. The premium cost $520. The profit on the policy amounted to $104.

Bernicchi explained that the policy he has with another insurance company covers malpractice, workers' compensation and the building contents. He said he paid a premium of over $30,000 on that policy.

Bernicchi said he also has his home and three personal cars insured with the Fitzgeralds' insurance company.

"I've been insured with Chris Fitzgerald for a long time . . . He insured the office building we own two years. He assured me at that time that he was the owner of the company."

That's almost true today, according to the junior Fitzgerald. He said he is in the process of buying out his father's interest in the company.

Chris Fitzgerald explained, "He (James Fitzgerald) no longer takes commissions. He's on a set salary. He is no longer active in the business. I run and manage the business and pay him a set amount. I'm gradually buying his interest."

Bernicchi's ties with the sanitation district go back several years. His company was formed in 1969 and from then until 1972 he was general manager of the district. During that period Bernicchi said his company didn't do any business with the district.

In 1972 with Fitzgerald's support, Bernicchi took charge of the engineering for the district's sewage treatment plant. "When I became the engineering manager, then I never received a salary from the district," Bernicchi said.

Since his company landed the contract for overseeing the construction of the plant, he noted, "I've never personally received anything. Our company is a corporation and I'm an employee who receives a salary."

revenues for districts to $70,000.

About 98 percent of the budget represents the cost of power.

Sanders said that the East Palo Alto Municipal Council and the sheriff's office had expressed opposition to any reduction in street lighting, because of safety and crime considerations.

In a related matter, the supervisors scheduled a meeting Aug. 15 to appropriate state bail-out funds to special police and fire districts.

County Manager David Nichols is recommending that the following districts be funded at 73 percent of their budgets last year: Broadmoor Police, Guadalupe Municipal Improvement, Colma, Half Moon Bay, Menlo Park, Point Montara and Woodside fire districts, plus four volunteer fire departments.

The Belmont Fire Protection District and the Estero Municipal Improvement District are recommended for 53 and 51.8 percent funding respectively. Those districts are governed by city councils.

Representatives of the volunteer departments pleaded with the supervisors for more money, noting that their budgets were cut significantly last year.

SamTrans Me Out To the Ballpark

By JOHN HORGAN

Scott Cameron, 13, of Millbrae took his uncle to a Giants game last week. But he wouldn't let his uncle drive. They took the bus instead. They weren't alone.

The SamTrans baseball special was filled with fans as it headed north along El Camino Real to Highway 380 in San Bruno and then up the Bayshore Freeway to Candlestick Park.

Giants Fever may be the best thing to happen to public transportation in San Mateo County since the gasoline shortage.

"Driving to Candlestick is a pain," declared Scott. "The parking lot is always too crowded."

His uncle, Roger Prince, 30, agreed. "There is usually a traffic jam and the parking lot can be a real hassle" he said. "This is my first time on the bus. My nephew is making a believer out of me."

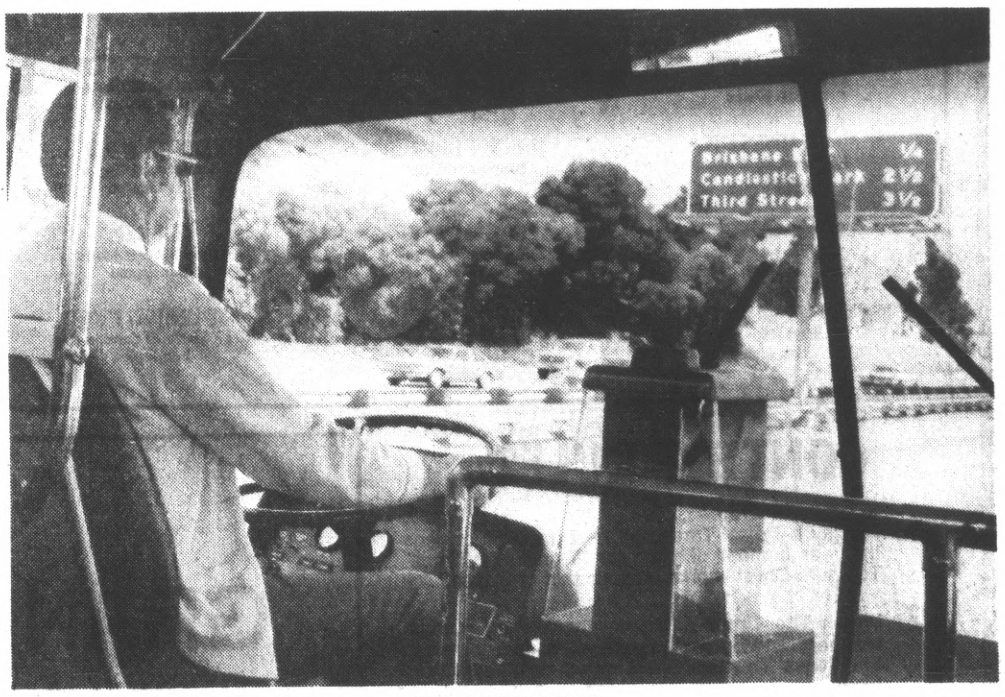
Prince teaches business to Arabs in Kuwait. His home town is Millbrae. He was back on the Peninsula on vacation. Like so many others here, he has been afflicted with a virulent form of baseball mania as the Giants have surged to the top of the standings in the National League West.

And SamTrans, eager to capitalize on this pleasant turn of events, has tried to cash in.

"It's a valuable promotion for us," says Jim Gallagher, public information director for the transit line. "For a lot of people, the baseball special is a first introduction to public transportation."

Since early July, SamTrans has been running at least two buses north from Redwood City two hours before game time. It takes a bus about 1.5 hours to traverse the complete route to the San Francisco stadium out on the bayfront. The bus leaves for the Peninsula 20 minutes after the final out of the game.

SamTrans had experimented with buses for some weekend games in the past. But, with Giants' attendance cresting the million mark, the demand for more bus service became apparent. SamTrans will now provide buses to all games for the rest of the season.



ALMOST THERE

Driver Ed Girdler is on the home stretch here as he heads north along the Candlestick cutoff.

Gallagher says the buses have been well-received. He says the service is breaking even too. That stands to reason because the idea is to make sure that the special buses run as full as possible. The Giants have cooperated by maintaining their lofty status as a bonafide playoff contender.

Interest in the team has mushroomed to the point where SamTrans had to put on five buses for one important game with Cincinnati several weeks ago. The same sort of thing will probably occur when Los Angeles returns to the Bay Area this week.

"I thought they would be right up there, but not number one," admitted O.M. Olivier, 72, of Burlingame. He was on the same bus with Scott Cameron and Roger Prince as it made its way to a game with St. Louis.

According to Olivier, he won't drive to the ballpark any more. "The bus is much more convenient," he said. A baseball fan for 55 years, he said, "I've used the bus four or five times already this season. I just buy my tickets when I get up there."

The baseball special is a bargain. It costs $2 round trip from Redwood City, $1.70 from San Mateo and $1.40 from Millbrae. The parking fee alone at Candlestick is typically $1.50. And that doesn't take into account your per-mile costs for the freeway jaunt itself.

"It's much cheaper to take the bus," said Tom Dugoni, 14, of Burlingame.

The Giants, of course, welcome the SamTrans venture.

A recent study indicated that 19 percent of the Giants' fans hail from this county. Another 17.5 percent come from Santa Clara County. All of these Peninsulans are potential users of SamTrans' buses.

Pat Gallagher, a marketing specialist for the team, says, "SamTrans is aggressive. They aren't like the Muni (the San Francisco Municipal bus system). The Muni is asking us for money to subsidize their routes to the ballpark. Now that we're winning, everyone has a hand in our pocket. But not SamTrans."

Still, there are a few minor bugs in the SamTrans baseball setup.

For one thing, the same drivers don't always work the Candlestick route. That can present a problem or two.

Pacifica's Ed Girdler, 54, the driver of the St. Louis special, had difficulty finding the proper off-ramp from Freeway 380 in San Bruno and found himself — and the bus — out on Airport Boulevard in front of the United Air Lines maintenance base.

He got back on the Bayshore Freeway and then got temporarily confused as he wheeled in front of the stadium itself. He missed his turn and was forced to backtrack, circling the perimeter of the park until he found an entrance. He was guided through the Candlestick maze by several helpful passengers.

There was some low-key grousing about Girdler's circuitous move because it meant that patrons would have to spend a little extra time in ticket lines once the bus arrived at its destination. "This is my first time on this run," apologized Girdler.

He had a bit of trouble on the ride back too.

As he negotiated Freeway 380, he missed the turn which would have gotten him onto El Camino Real. Instead, his bus — which contained about 60 riders — wound up on Freeway 280 bound for South San Francisco.

"Sorry about that," said Girdler over his speaker.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Rich can make you poor. Little did I know when I first wrote that line about two years ago just how poor rich could make you. That was in pre-Phase I, II, III, and IV. Truth then has inflated to bitter truth now.

For it is the rich foods that do make you poor. Beef is a rich food, and I speak not solely of price. I speak of those marbly strands of fat weaving through the red meat. It's the fat that tenderizes the beef while it fattens the humans and flattens the pocketbook.

Rich can make you poor when you opt for the convenience of digging into an ice cream container for desert. It's easy, sure, but so is washing off the fruit of the season and arranging it in an attractive bowl to make an edible centerpiece.

Rich can make you poor when you squander your grocery budget thoughtlessly on rich pastried or rich-in-fat snack foods. It's that moment of impulse when the hand darts toward the package that makes the market and manufacturer richer, you poorer — nutrition-wise and money-wise.

Poor need not make you poor in he sense of deprivation. You may enrich your diet menus with taste and variety by following recipes with an accent on nutrition as well as taste.

PARTY SUPPER RING
(Baked Stuffed Flounder)

- 8 flounder fillets (2½ pounds)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 pound shrimp
- 2 egg whites
- 3 tablespoons tomato juice
- 3 Ounces cottage cheese
- 1/3 cup powdered skim milk
- ½ teaspoon dressing mix
- ½ tablespoon chopped parsley

Brush both sides of fish with lemon juice and sprinkle with salt. Line a 5-cup teflon ring mold with fillets, let pieces overhang outside and inside rims. Fill with one-half the shrimp and all other ingredients in blender, until smooth. Spoon into the mold. Fold ends of fillets, overlapping, over top of filling. Cover loosely with square of wax paper.

To bake, place ring mold in 14 by 10 inch baking pan. Then pour in boiling water around mold to depth of one inch. Bake 30 minutes, 350 degrees. When done, loosen edge of ring with spatula, invert over platter, lift off mold. Garnish with mushrooms and parsley or watercress. Serve with hot baby beets and raw spinach salad.

Nor does voluntary food poverty equal nutritional sacrifi ce. The less (and today that is a very relative word) expensive cuts of any meat contain the same minerals and vitamins and protein as do the more expensive cuts.

I can't promise you miraculous recovery from the anemia of the budget that has struck every household. I can promise only that you'll decrease the family's exposure to cholesterol, savor delicous food, and save a few pennies. A few pennies saved may be a minor miracle, consider that as you remember that rich not only makes you fat, it makes you poor.

I'll gladly answer your diet questions if you write to me at The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taravel St., San Francisco, 94116.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

We're all familiar with coffee as a beverage, as the flavor of many a delicious dessert, but have you ever tried it as an ingredient in a main dish? Coffee is excellent in gravies, sauces and this easy-to-make Spicy Skillet Chicken.

SPICY SKILLET CHICKEN

- 2 tablespoons freeze-dried coffee
- 1 teaspoon boiling water
- 1 cup seafood cocktail sauce
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- One 2½-3 pound chicken, cut-up
- Salt
- Pepper
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- One 16-ounce jar boiled onions, drained or 2 cups small whole frozen onions
- One 4½-ounce jar whole mushrooms, drained

In small bowl, combine 2 tablespoons freeze-dried coffee and 1 teaspoon boiling water; stir until coffee is dissolved. Add 1 cup seafood cocktail sauce and 1 teaspoon sugar; mix well; set aside.

Sprinkle pieces of 2½-3 pound chicken with salt and pepper. In large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons oil; brown chicken pieces on both sides over moderate heat. Drain thoroughly on paper towels. Pour off excess oil from skillet. Return chicken to skillet.

Pour coffee sauce over chicken. Simmer, covered, over medium heat about 25 minutes or until chicken is tender. Stir in 16-ounce onions and 4½-ounces mushrooms. Cook over low heat 10-15 minutes, stirring occasionally, until heated through. Makes four generous servings.

On Understanding the Past

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

The society's membership brochure states ". . . to preserve historical source materials on which cultural understanding is built. Docent Tom Clarke puts it a little differently: ". . . to profit from the past, from its successes and its mistakes."

Volunteer docent Clarke is one of several who conducts tours through the Whittier House, 2090 Jackson St., San Francisco, headquarters of the California Historical Society, a statewide, private, non-profit group.

FROM THE outside, Whittier House is undistinguished, one might even say ugly, as West Coast Victorians go. Hedged by massive apartment blocks, its two squat towers, separated by a modified Greek temple facade, embrace a massive front door flanked by panels of French red marble. A coat of unimaginative brown paint, applied some years ago to inhibit weathering in the damp Bay Area climate of the original Arizona sandstone used to face the brick exterior and give it a "New York brownstone" appearance, now is peeling, leaving the building with a gringy, sunburned look.

Among its many furnishings only a few originals remain, chiefly carpets and lighting fixtures. Other pieces are donations to the Society and represent an approximation of the original furnishings. Blown-up photographs from a series shot in 1898 show visitors exactly how the rooms were furnished when Whittier, his son and two daughters lived there.

ONE OF the comments Clarke makes as he presents the hour-long house tour is a pitch for the Historical Society and its record-keeping. It archives, housed in an adjacent building and containing the California Genealogical Collection in addition to its own books, manuscripts, photographs and other memorabilia, furnish background and inspiration for historians, writers and those simply interested in finding their family's place within the web of California's past.

Donations of anything and everything, including personal letters, diaries, unpublished writings, paintings, even authentic furniture, are appraised carefully before acceptance. One category, "ephemera," is devoted to things as mundane as playbills and shopping lists which can furnish, to the practiced reader, valuable insight concerning cultural and economic conditions.

The library maintains the same hours as society headquarters — Wednesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. House tours are offered Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday at 1:30 p.m. There is an admission charge to support the work of the society, but the first Saturday of each month is free.

DOCENT training begins Sept. 9 and anyone interested in learning more about California's past and sharing this knowledge with others is invited to call 567-1848 for more information.

Inside, however, is a different story. Owner/builder Whittier was a paint and varnish merchant whose specialty was varnishes. Each room of the mansion exhibits elaborately designed parquet flooring, carved wainscoting, mantles and molding as well as built-in cupboards and cabinets of oak, mahogany, redwood and other rare fine-grained woods, most still sporting their original finishes, no mean accomplishment when one considers the house was built in the 1890s.

Whittier also was an innovator, gadgeteer and pragmatic civic-minded citizen. His house's steel reinforced brick construction, the first residence built that way in San Francisco, withstood the 1906 earthquake. Its dual lighting system, traditional gas and "new fangled" electricity — as shown at San Francisco's Midwinter Fair — not only provided him with fail-safe illumination but also with conversational stimulus among those he sought to have invest in PG&E stock, the corporation of which he was a member of the board of directors.

WHITTIER'S civic involvement with public utilities gave him private access to the electric lines powering San Francisco's street cars and to the city's special high pressure fire-fighting water line which he tapped to power his hydraulic lift, an early Otis, cage-like, in-home elevator.

One of the most fascinating spots in the house is what was once the smoking room in a rear tower off the dining room and done in mid-Eastern decor. Part of its charm lies in its multi-colored, intricately molded, arched plaster ceiling. For four months, in 1941, the mansion was owned by the German Third Reich. During its brief use as a consolate, a false ceiling was constructed below the original when the room became an office. Only recently was the old ceiling discovered relatively intact above the new. Restoration is in progress.

FOR A crash course in California history accomplished in an hour or two, visit — and take out-of-town guests along — what I consider the most comprehensive collection of Californiana in the state. It's on the second level of the Oakland Museum, 10th and Fallon streets, easily accessible by freeway or BART. Not only does it contain Indian, Spanish, Mexican and Gold Rush mementos, plus Victorian artifacts, it also brings one up almost to the present day through decad--spaced exhibits evoking nostalgia for the "good old" twenties, thirties, forties, fifties and sixties.

It's an interesting place to play "fly on the wall" and listen to parents and grandparents reminisce and explain to children exactly "how it was," especially when one of them begins to correct a museum docent with, "Now, as I remember. . .".

In addition to its California history collection, the Oakland Museum maintains a California artists exhibit hall and, on its lower level, houses an aquarium and the incomparable "Walk Across California" ecosystem exhibits. Excellent parking, special musical, film and art events, spacious gardens for relaxing and a restaurant for snacking make the complex the complete excursion facility.

OPEN HOURS are Tuesday through Sunday at 10 a.m. Closing ones vary: Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 5 p.m. Friday at 10 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m. Since the museum is supported partially by City of Oakland money, hours may be reduced as a result of buget tightening. Call 893-4257 for exact information.

Without a sense of past it's difficult for one to understand completely the present. The San Francisco-based California Historical Society and the Oakland Museum are two of the best sources of "past" in the Bay Area, both guarantee to give one a deeper appreciation for the years on which "today" is built.

New Rabbi Leads At B'nai Israel

Congregation B'nai Israel has announced the appointment of Rabbi Malcolm Irving Cohen as its spiritual leader.

He received his BA in 1948 and was the winner of the Engel Academic Award in Religious Studies and Hotchkiss Scholarship for Merit.

The rabbi was graduated from Hebrew Union College, Jewish Institute of Religion, Cincinnati, Ohio and received his Bachelor of Hebrew Letters in 1949, Master of Hebrew Letters degree in 1952 and was ordained rabbi and teacher in 1952.

Cohen was a candidate for an honorary doctor of divinity degree in 1978 and has 21 years in the rabbinate.

He has several writings in process of publication, including "Miscellaneous Inspirational Gems," "Odyssey of an American Rabbi," "Anthology of Sermons, C.C.C.," "Conversing with Chaplain Cohen" and "The Bible Behind Bars."

Cohen has been a lecturer at many colleges, seminaries and universities throughout the United States, sponsored by the Jewish Chautauqua Society on the Jewish influence in many academic areas.

In 1952-53, Cohen was the Jewish Air Force chaplain in Texas; assistant deputy staff chaplain of Third Air Force and Seventh Air Division in Great Britain and Norway; simultaneously he was the only American Jewish Chaplain for all American armed forces in this area.

His last two pulpits were with Temple Beth El in Salinas from 1973 to 1975 and Congregation Beth Jacob in Fresno from 1969 to 1973.

Game Uses A Computer

By RICHARD C. MOON

A number of games on the market are making ingenious use of computer technology. One of the best games of this type is COMP IV by Milton Bradley, an exciting computer-programmed game that can be played by one or more players.

The game itself is quite simple. Players try to guess a random number generated by Comp IV's computer. The computer will "play" games of three, four or five digit numbers; good exercises in deduction and mental logic.

TO BEGIN the game a player presses the key marked R. Comp IV then scans, flashing lights on the screen while it selects a number. The light marked R in the top right of the screen lights when Comp IV is ready for play. The same light also serves as a timer.

If you have not entered a number after 30 seconds the light will start flashing slowly. After another 30 seconds the light will flash more quickly. This allows players to gauge the length of time they have to deduce the hidden number.

After the R key is pressed the player first determines the complexity of the game he wishes to play. If he wants to play a three digit game, the first entry should be a three digit number; to play a four digit game, four digits are entered, and so on.

EACH TIME a guess is entered, Comp IV compares it to the number it has generated and is holding in its memory. There are two columns of light on Comp IV's screen that indicate how accurate one's guesses are for solving the hidden number.

The column marked "number" informs the player how many of the digits in his entry are correct. The column marked "sequence" reads out how many are in the correct order.

The game is very well designed. It is streamlined and compact and fits comfortably in a player's hand.

Comp IV is a quiet game. While challenging it is also relaxing and a player easily can become engrossed totally in deciphering the number patterns Comp IV has selected randomly. There is almost something therapeutic about pitting one's own powers of reason against the computer.

ALTHOUGH Milton Bradley claims Comp IV is designed for players aged 12 to adult, children as young as eight years of age appear to enjoy the game and will play for hours at a time. Because the game is silent and requires concentration it is ideal for parents, who, from time to time, need to quiet the tremendous amount of noise children sometimes can make.

Another plus is that Comp IV is a single unit so there is never any danger of losing pieces. The game resembles a pocket calculator and, like a pocket calculator, it requires one nine-volt radio-type battery to operate.

Samuel Chandler

Doelger's Westlake houses. To some people they constitute a "look-alike, think-alike instant suburb"; to some observers they seem to be ticky-tacky boxes, but to many people they are houses that have evolved into homes.

A home, in the words of Elgar a Girest, is a place that allows for a "heap of living." It is a place, said Elbert Hubbard, "where a heart can be content." A home is a "house that resembles a spirit," Emerson wrote.

SURELY it is a tribute to the late Henry Doelger that so many of his houses wear the title of home, fitting perfectly that families that occupy them. Doelger had a vision and made a reality of it. Where most people saw swamps and gulleys, hog ranches and cabbage patches on sandy soil, Doelger saw a village of brightly colored homes.

Under Doelger's supervision Westlake became a housing development that the Ladies Home Journal called a "comfortable middle-class area offering a stimulating cross-section of people and excellent transportation." It became and remains a community of "carefully tended homes and lawns extended almost to the Pacific cliffs . . ."

There are leaders who find a way to bring together architects, engineers, government officials and artists and blend them into a force that meets the demands of the times. Henry Doelger was one of these. As one of his associates said, "Henry was everywhere watching us work and helping us over our problems."

IT HAS been said that Henry Doelger ran roughshod over mean and rules. But in such men there is a self-trust that is the essence of heroism. They have a divine impatience that Samuel Johnson called the first requisite of great undertakings. When the trumpet sounds such people rush into the thickest of the fight and amid the uproar of battle lead the rest of such to greater achievement.

Such men as Henry Doelger beckon to the rest of us with words as those penned by Longfellow:

"Build to-day, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base;
And ascending and secure
Shall tomorrow find its place."

The Westlake homes stand as evidence that Henry Doelger achieved much. On the occasion of his death, let each "Westlaker" take a moment to pay tribute to him.

Wet Nose Isn't a Sign

By D. R. BARNETT, DVM

Question: Is it true that if a dog has a wet nose he's healthy, or is it an old saying? When my dog, Ronto, is asleep his nose is dry. When he's not asleep it's wet. But my father says when a dog has a wet nose that means he's healthy. I don't think that's true because we learned in biology last week that a dog doesn't have glands on the outside of his nose and he keeps it wet by licking it.

—H.M.

Answer: When a dog has a high fever its nose sometimes will be hot and dry but not always. Many perfectly healthy dogs have dry noses so it's not a very reliable sign.

Question: Our dog, Rocky, has a bubble-like formation on his navel. It has been there for a couple of months. It doesn't look too bad and doesn't seem to bother him much. We thought at first it was a boil, but it hasn't changed or become any larger. I suppose we ought to take him to a hospital, but we would like to get some ideas on how serious it might be — can you help us? B. I.

Answer: "The bubble-like formation" at Rocky's navel is most likely an umbilical hernia which is a small hole in the musculature of the abdominal wall. In puppies they usually are present from birth, sometimes causing no problems and other times enlarging as the dog grows and allowing a part of the intestine to come through under the skin which can cause serious problems. You should have Rocky examined by your veterinarian, who will evaluate it and tell you whether or not surgical repair is necessary.

Question: My wife has had a cat for three years and raised it from a kitten. This cat has no use for me and I've tried everything trying to get her more friendly with me — feeding her, petting her (when she lets me) and so on. It doesn't do much good. I've never abused her. Do animals acquire dislikes for people? Why? —P.P.

Answer: Cats can be very independent by nature,and definitely can prefer one person over another. Some cats are outgoing and affectionate, wanting to sit on anyone's lap and be petted while others want nothing to do with anyone. Like people, they all are different.

Insta-Tune introduces the $13,164 tune-up for $39 (or less)
It takes a lot of expensive equipment to tune a racing engine. About $13,164 worth, to be exact. Just imagine what that kind of equipment could do for a passenger car! One way to find out is to take your car to a nearby INSTA-TUNE center. At INSTA-TUNE, the nation's largest tune-up chain of its kind, every car is dynamometer tuned under actual driving conditions. So you get peak performance and maximum horsepower at all driving speeds. Sophisticated electronic equipment is used to analyze ignition, exhaust and carburetion so your car will deliver the best possible gas mileage. In fact your gas savings alone could more than cover the cost of an INSTA-TUNE tune-up. And, by the way, your INSTA-TUNE center will do a complete tune-up on most American or foreign cars in about 30 minutes, while you wait.
Here's what you get:
- New plugs, points and condenser
- New distributor cap, rotor and coil, if needed
- Replace faulty ignition wires and/or terminals
- Adjust points and timing
- Adjustment and chemical cleaning of carburetor

A Place To Find History

Colma's 13 cemeteries, the Chinese Cemetery in Daly City and three cemeteries in unincorporated parts of the county have been nominated by the State Historical Resources Commission to the National Register of Historic Places. Daly City librarian Samuel Chandler, who drafted the proposal, said it took nearly three years for the state commission to consider it. The cemeteries are one of the largest nominations the commission has made. At right, a trio of pioneers commemorate the early settlers of California who were moved from San Francisco cemeteries to Cypress Lawn Cemetery in Colma. At left, an angel graces a very old tomb in Holy Cross Cemetery.

When 350 People Are Aboard And Two Engines Fail . . .

By GEORGE GOLDING

Captain Al Fritz was taking off on a routine Pan Am flight to London Tuesday night when disaster almost occurred.

The big 747 was carrying 333 passengers and 17 crew members and was gathering speed along Runway 28-Left, headed almost due west for the "the gap" between San Bruno Mountain and Sweeney ridge south of Daly City.

Captain Fritz and his co-pilot and second officer "rotated" the big plane as it reached take-off speed about three-fourths of the way along the 10,600 foot runway, lifting the nose with a steady back pressure on the control wheel. At the same time, each of the three kept one hand shoving forward on the four throttles, the hands melding the men into a combined unit driving 750,000 pounds of aircraft into the sky.

Airspeed climbed past 140 knots as the plane and its payload climbed off San Francisco International, and approached a radio navigational transmitter called the "middle marker" near the northwesterly corner of the airfield.

Number Two engine, between the cabin and Number One, suddenly lost power.

With virtually no power on the left side and two Pratt & Whitney JT-9 engines each creating 45,000 pounds of thrust on the right wing, there was a sudden yaw to the left and Captain Fritz and his flight officers were very busy keeping the plane on a straight course.

Almost immediately, Captain Fritz realized he did not have enough power to lift 375 tons of aircraft over the few hundred feet of altitude through "the gap." above Daly City and South San Francisco subdivisions and the cemeteries of Colma.

Wheeling the big plane hard to the right, Captain Fritz veered the 747 over South San Francisco's industrial sections and out over San Francisco Bay until he was heading almost due east, parallel to the runway he had just left.

As he turned, electronic detectors notified San Francisco Tower that the plane was approaching closer to the mountain than is considered safe. A "land mass warning" light flickered on in the tower.

By this time, the tower had been alerted that a potentially disastrous incident was under way.

Airport officers were notified. In the ground-level Operations headquarters in the South Terminal, Supervisor Robert Bomben received the message at 8:47 p.m.:

"Pan American Airlines 747 Flight 124 with engine problems losing altitude over the water. Plane to land on Runway 28-Right. Number of occupants and fuel load unknown at this time."

Bomben called the airport's Communications Center to have a communications operator sent to Operations immediately, to take over the task of coordinating emergency messages and to alert airport officials about the possible emergency.

Out over the Bay, Captain Fritz and his crew were struggling to keep their plane in the air.

"At one point," tower personnel reported later, "the aircraft was lower than the roof of the Superbay hangar" on the offshore side of the airport.

A water landing was considered while the plane mushed along, unable to gain altitude. Number Two engine suddenly revived.

At about the same time, a United Airlines jet was taking off on Runway 1-Right — one of the north-south runways which bisect the east-west path being flown by Pan Am's 747.

Control tower operators told the United pilot to make a sharp right turn, to avoid a midair collision of the two airliners and the scattering of hundreds of people into the murky waters of the Bay.

At one point, controllers said, the two planes were within a half mile of each other, a time distance of about two-tenths of a second.

As Captain Fritz's Number Two engine gained power, however, he was able to climb to an altitude from which he could safely dump fuel and make the plane light enough to land without blowing out all 16 of the huge tires on its landing gear.

On the ground, disaster preparations continued.

Communications operator Vincent Bach phoned an Emergency Call List starting with Airport Director Richard Heath.

Officers not on the initial call-up from the control tower's imminent crash alarm were called to stand by in case of need.

Airport Police Lt. Frank O'Malley was asked to bring all his officers to alert, also.

Airfield Safety Officer Stanley Piett hurried to "Building 1000," the airport's disaster equipment storehouse, and drove the "Command Post and Emergency Van" to Firehouse Two, across Runway 28 from the terminal buildings and tower.

Another of the three Airfield Safety Officers on duty, Michael Towles, reported to his preselected position near the airport entrance roads, ready to escort a "triage doctor" and medical staff to the crash scene.

The third Airfield Safety Officer, Franklin Gadson, stationed himself nearby, to establish an access route for ambulances to the crash scene, and to escort off-airport emergency vehicles to the site if a crash should occur.

At 9:05, Supervisor Bomben knew his men were in position. He heard from the Airport Fire Department that its crews were also fully on the alert and that the Fire Rescue Boat was manned and waiting in the Bay at the east end of the field.

At 9:09, the Tower told Bomben that there were 350 people on Flight 124, that the pilot was dumping fuel over the Bay, and that a landing could be expected at about 9:30.

Peter Ashton, Red Cross disaster director for the area, phoned in at 9:15 to report that he was standing by.

A list of hospital emergency rooms, beginning with nearby Peninsulsa Hospital in Burlingame and extending throughout San Mateo and San Francisco counties, had been put on the alert. Nurses and doctors were getting ready to serve.

Emergency transport systems, ambulances and fire engines, were notified and prepared to rush to the airport.

All the preparedness steps worked out in years of drills, in scores of meetings between pilots and airline officials and airport officers and doctors, all the steps had been taken.

"At 9:29," reported Airfield Safety Officer Gadson, "Pan American World Airways Flight 124 landed on Runway 28-R without incident, taxied onto Taxiway Tango, and taxied under power to the International Rotunda, Gate 2."

Pan Am passenger service people escorted the passengers from the plane, fed them and made them as comfortable as possible until they could board another aircraft and be flown to London. All the emergency stand-by crews of doctors and medics and rescuers were called off.

Meanwhile, the plane that failed was taken to the Pan Am hangar.

Airfield Safety Officer Gadson said a visual check revealed no apparent damage to Engine One or Two.

He said a tour of Runway 28-L in a speeding yellow and white airfield safety patrol car disclosed no debris on the runway, nor any damage or cause of damage during the take-off.

"The entire operation lasted 45 minutes," he said, "and at no time was it necessary to close any portion of the airport operational area."

Post-Vacation Readjustment

By LOUANNE HEATH

It takes awhile to readjust to the everyday life in suburbia after a month abroad but Mr. and Mrs. Norman McKenna of Westlake just about have returned to their normal routine following four "marvelous" weeks in Holland.

Marie McKenna came to the United State from Holland as a very young child and this is her third trip to her native land, the second trip to Holland for her husband, Norman, who started the sojourn in a wheelchair and returned feeling chipper and agile.

ACCORDING to Marie, the McKennas had visited all the larger cities and the usual tourist attractions on previous occasions and this visit was confined to family gatherings and junkets between the homes of relatives.

The trip began with a polar flight from San Francisco and continued to Friesland Providence, Tershelling Island, to Marie's hometown of Flushing, Zeeland, to the German border on the east and to the Belgian border on the south with a visit to the resort town of Zandvoort-by-the-Sea slipped into the itinerary.

ARE YOU as unaware, as I was, of the Youth Training and Placement program developed by the local chapter of Friends Outside?

South San Francisco's Louise Enberg is deeply involved with the program that provides training for youths whose parents have run afoul of the law and are serving time in jail.

The first group of seven graduates already have been placed in full-time jobs and the second group of young men began training July 5.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Enberg, the job training and job development program has been assisted substantially by the In-Plant Printing Management Association (IPMA), an association of professionals in the reprographics field.

Members of IPMA have been providing the Friends Outside program with job leads, conducting tours of print shops and hiring program graduates!

For more information about the program call the Friends Outside office on Church Street in San Francisco.

FEEL LIKE doing a little long range planning? Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, the tour director for the Fifty Plus Club of Pacifica is busy working on travel arrangements for a trip to the Holy Land in October, 1979.

According to Mrs. Calhan, this is to be an air-sea cruise which will include Athens, Kusadasi, Istanbul, Mykonos, Crete, Cairo, Alexandria, Giza, Haifa, Galilee, Nazareth, Rhodes and Corinth.

Announcement of the trip is being made now so that persons wishing to enjoy the sojourn may make suitable financial arrangements and locate compatible traveling companions. Cost of the tour will be between $1,200 and $2,000, according to the type of accommodations selected.

For more information contact Mrs. Calhan or Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg.

Skateboards, Pets Are Red Cross Subjects

Red Cross Youth Services has invited high school students in San Mateo County to become instructors in skateboard safety. This new program will be taught in half-day sessions scheduled for Aug. 8,9 and 10 at 1550 Sutter St., San Francisco. Instructors will be asked to teach 9- to 12-year-olds on a volunteer basis. Basic skateboard skills and equipment will be required for all participants.

A second subject focuses on first aid for pts. Training in how to be an instructor in this unusual subject is being offered on the same days. Students should have their own pet to use when teaching the course after completing training.

A half-day course in how to become an instructor in Basic Aid Training also is offered. This covers handling minor injuries which may be encountered during play or as the result of improper skateboarding.

Those interested should call 776-1500, ext. 264 in San Francisco, or 343-4561, ext. 21 in San Mateo County by Aug. 1 to enroll. Lunch will be provided for all instructor-trainees and transportation will be arranged to bring San Mateo County students into San Francisco.

Le Pacini

The recently formed Giants Fan Club is probably the best baseball fan club I've ever heard of, because it's been created not just to adulate athletes, but as a means to bring the poor and the handicapped to the ballpark.

Willie McCovey is the honorary president of the club and will hold that title in perpetuity, says Mrs. Anne Murphy, the club's "working" president.

ALREADY, a group of 25 wheelchair-bound fans is slated to see the Dodger game at Candlestick Aug. 25.

Needless to say, the club needs volunteers, mostly to act as guides to the handicapped who will be attending the games, and money. Dues are $5 a year and the membership "card" will be a four-inch Giants Fan Club emblem that can be worn on a jacket or hat. The emblems will be dated and vary in design each year, so that fans may be able to make a collection of them.

If you're interested in donating your time or your money or both, write to and make checks payable to the Giants Fan Club, P.O. Box 3282, Daly City 94015. An enclosed stamp for the mailing of the emblem will be appreciated.

I'M STILL trying to figure out, doctor, why Bill Madlock couldn't play for several games because of eight stitches in his lip after a home plate collision, while Steve Garvey, with a 20-stitch gash in his chin incurred on an errant throw at first base, missed only the rest of that game and went on to be the All-Star MVP despite his throbbing chin.

Although I certainly don't profess to have ever been anywhere near the class player that Madlock is, and will admit to a high degree of cowardice in many areas, I can promise from personal experience that a fat lip can't possibly deter a baseball player from playing his best.

During a semi-pro game in my youth, I was in the process of fielding a bunt along the first base line when a huge stud kneed me in the mouth, not only sending my tooth through my lip, but knocking me so senseless that I went 4-for-4 that day, hit absolutely nothing but ropes, and don't to this day remember any of them. When the game was over my head cleared and I went to the emergency hospital and had my lip sewn back together.

I learned two things from that incident: that the only way I could ever make it as a ballplayer would be to play in a complete state of unconsciousness for the duration of my career (which didn't seem practical), and that a split lip only hurts when you chew tobacco or eat Mexican food, but has nothing to do with one's ability to play baseball. It's an inconvenience, but it isn't disabling.

SUDDEN THOUGHTS: That sophomore jinx has really caught up to Jack Clark, hasn't it?

I don't think it was a coincidence, during that period of sloppy Giants' pitching, that the defense was equally as sloppy. Sloppy pitching has much to do with sloppy fielding. When pitchers are working fast and efficiently and throwing strikes, fielders are just naturally more alert, literally on their toes. Pitchers who get wild and work slowly (and pitchers tend to work more slowly when things are going against them), literally put fielders back on their heels.

Another factor is that when pitchers have good control, their defense has a much better idea of where the ball will be hit, and the ability to anticipate is about half the battle in defense.

IRONICALLY, the team that set the Giants pitching staff on its ear was Atlanta. After that, the Giants were battered by St. Louis. Aside from the A's, Atlanta and St. Louis are the two lowest-hitting, least-productive teams in baseball. Yet the Giants continually have held hard-hitting teams at bay.

It all, I suppose, goes back to concentration, which is perhaps the most important yet most elusive element in winning. There is a natural tendency to let down against lesser competition. If anything wears down the Giants' pitching staff this year it will be their inability to concentrate, and there is evidence that it does exist.

The Giants may give up more hits to opposing pitchers than any team in the National League. I don't know how they stand in relation to other teams in rallies allowed after two are out, or in giving up hits on no-ball, two-strike situations, but they must be right in there among the tops in those categories, too.

BASEBALL MISCELLANY: The June 3 issue of the Sporting News proclaimed in large headlines, "Old Pro Horton Valuable Injun," and a month later Willie Horton was released by Cleveland. To be picked up, of course, by the A's.

Some day Bobby Bonds finally is going to convince a manager that he's much more effective as a leadoff hitter. When he was with the Giants he set home run records as leadoff hitter, would be dropped to the middle of the batting order "to take advantage of his power," and immediately go into a slump. He'd complain and be put back up at the top and start hitting again.

Earlier this year with the White Sox, and then after he was traded to Texas, he was batted continually in the middle of the order, and was a big disappointment — until a few weeks ago. Texas Manager Billy Hunter batted him leadoff and he immediately went on a hitting tear.

JIM RICE is getting all the publicity in the American League this year, but it's about time that some of the flack start going to Milwaukee's Larry Hisle, who, proportionately, is hitting at a better home run clip that Rice and driving in virtually as many runs, even though he is hitting about 30 points lower.

Hisle was out with injuries for a long stretch, and he's had to go like crazy to catch up to Rice, and he almost has. And besides that, he's a better outfielder and baserunner than Rice.

And speaking of proportionate hitting, old Willie Stargell, the Pirates' version of Willie McCovey, has been to bat more than 100 fewer times than Dave Parker, his highly publicized teammate, yet as this was written he had hit just one less home run, was right behind Parker in RBI and was slowly creeping up with his batting average, too.

IT'S A coincidence, isn't it, that Thurman Munson, probably Reggie Jackson's most hated rival on the Yankees, has taken his job in right field. Or is it a coincidence?

In discussing outfielders' throwing arms recently, it was mentioned that the players with the really great arms actually don't usually get many assists because runners don't take chances going on them. On the other hand, Boston's great right fielder, Dwight Evans — who may have the greatest arm of them all — already has about 10 assists at this point. What must be happening is that runners are saying to themselves, "Nooooo, he's got a great arm, but he can't make THIS one." But he does.

Local kid Keith Hernandez of St. Louis Cardinals, who always said he could hit southpaws, (he swings lefty) was always right. Last season he hit .275 against righties, .321 against lefties.

BASEBALL TRIVIA: Questions: What player hit a homer in his first at-bat in the majors, then never hit another one in a 20-year career? What onetime Yankee-slugger successfully turned pitcher for Pittsburgh and once led the NL in walks?

Answers: Hoyt Wilhelm and Johnny Lindell.

SO CLOSE, YET SO FAR

The La Costa Golf Course clubhouse, in background, looks like this from the 6th fairway, with golfers having to shoot over a water hazard, foreground, and a sand bunker behind it to reach the elevated green.

Golf course explorer

By Hal Gevertz

Throughout my golfing travels I have played golf courses that have satisfied my appetite in the way of sound holes, exciting design and lovely surroundings. But when I went to play and enjoy the hospitality of the La Costa Hotel and Spa in Carlsbad, I found some indoor facilities that for awhile took my mind off the game of golf.

First, let me tell you that La Costa (meaning "the coast" in Spanish) is located near the white-sanded beaches of the Pacific coastline, 30 miles north of San Diego off Highway 5. It is also the home of the annual PGA Tournament of Champions golf tournament.

AS MUCH as I love the game of golf, La Costa can make it difficult for you to find the first tee. That's if you take advantage of the most elegant and sumptous spa erected by man since the days of Anthony and Cleopatra.

A world of pampering awaits you while enjoying the exercise and rock stem rooms; herbal wraps and 17 sprays of hot and cold Swiss showers. King-size mineral whirlpool baths, massaging rooms and other professional beauty treatments also are there to soothe and invigorate every inch of you.

It was back in the 60s that architect Dick Wilson was called upon to build a golf course on this planned year-around resort and residential community. It was a tough go at the beginning, building up the turf grass soil while continually fighting underground sea water that seemed to want to take over the course.

THIS YEAR another adverse predator, flood water, inundated the course and took a couple of cart bridges with it to the sea. I was able to play the course a few days after the water subsidized with conditions not what I would call ideal.

The layout plays from the center markers of 6,446 to the 6,855-yard championship blocks. The La Costa spread travels around 99 percent level valley terrain while being comforted by hillside terraces stocked with expensive condominiums, townhouses and opulent homes. The fairways can be widen but are well compressed with thick grass rough and 137 bankers that make sure you hit the ball arrow-straight or suffer. In fact, I raked so many traps the morning I played that I could have signed a time card for a day's work for the management.

There are many eucalyptus, pine and olive trees separating the fairways but they don't crowd together until the eye-pleasing 400-yard par 4 13th through the 16th hole, when tall and close-knit tree arrangements hassle errant shotmaking. Frequent water hazards come into play, ranging from the present raging creeks to a hugh lake protecting the par 3, 181-yard 7th that features a beautiful man-made waterfall.

A VERY strong contingent of par fours, weighing in at 400 to 449 yards, are concentrated at La Costa to contain short ball hitters and make long ball players try harder. And there's no way an average player is going to reach greenside playland in regulation if the ocean breezes attach themselves to the 409-yard 16th and 423-yard 18th.

The 366-yard par four sixth and the 435-yard 10th have a creek and lake fronting the greens. These are two definite layup holes on the second shots if the drives are on the skimoy side: otherwise water misadventure will find all careless attempts.

One of the toughest holes on the course is the 449-yard par 4 fifth. A water ditch curls through the fairway, daring any player to hit the ball away from its prescribed landing areas. The green is one of the smallest on the course and trying to contain it with a wood shot is no easy matter.

The par five 560-yard 17th, dubbed the "Monster," is one hole where every shot has to be extra long and accurate. Prevailing ocean breezes, a water hazard bordering a portion of the right side of the fairway through the green and a narrow bunker-strewn fairway left will help turn away many par attempts.

Personable Tommy Jacobs, former PGA great who now is director of golf at la Costa, and Ron Holden, golf course superintendent, just recently rebuilt 16 of La Costa's greens and they are spectacular in functional design.

La Costa's steep greens, set up on high mounds, are saturated with white sanded bunkers to turn many pitch and run shots. This is one course where you have to approach up and on, definitely placing a premium on hitting the green.

They are not of the undulating stylings, but the putting surfaces, that break towards the Pacific Ocean, contain many hidden breaks. The new coarse-grained, bent-grass greens are slow putting, but give them some additional maturity and then hold on for some speedy ball movements.

EXCELLENT putting green and driving range accomodations are close to the course for convenient practice. Twenty-five all-weather hard courts for tennis buffs and a Saddle Club for horse lovers also are found adjoining the golf course.

For people who hate to be bored and can afford the better things in life, La Costa awaits you in a world of superb cusine, continental atmosphere and luxury.

A Cinderella Story

Mateo Nine Wins

By JOHN MURPHY

Desire. It was once a quality that San Mateo's Joe DiMaggio League pitcher Brian Silvas lacked.

But Silvas' passive days are over. These days he has fire in his eyes and plans for the future.

Silvas also has an impressive seasonal record in the DiMaggio League. The San Mateo High grad went 8-1 against Peninsula League competition and 13-1 overall.

His 13th win was a crucial one. Sunday at San Mateo's Fitzgerald Field he pitched Eureka Federal Savings to a 6-3 title-clinching victory over San Bruno.

The win advances EFS into the regional playoffs Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at Daly City's Marchbank Park against San Carlos.

Flying Goose of Daly City will play at 1 p.m. against the winner of the Del Mar-Overfelt game. Goose finished in last place in the Peninsula League but will be in the regionals because it is hosting the tournament.

Silvas didn't exactly pitch a masterpiece against San Bruno. But he was tough when he had to be, working his way out of several sticky jams with minimal damage.

The College of San Mateo-bound righthander has been somewhat of a Cinderella story this season. He got cut from San Mateo High's baseball team as a junior but made the squad this year and went 9-3 overall while leading San Mateo into the Central Coast Section playoffs.

EFS also found the golden slipper in this year's Peninsula League race. The San Mateo club lost its first three games of the year to San Bruno and four of its first five before rattling off 12 consecutive victories.

San Bruno, which finished third in the round-robin season, and then defeated Millbrae on Wednesday and EFS on Friday to make the championship game, just didn't have it in this contest.

Shortstop Greg Funk gave San Bruno a 1-0 lead with an RBI single in the first inning. Funk's hit scored teammate Steve Mooney (who had doubled) from third.

But T. J. Noonan, who had beaten Silvas 3-2 to open the season, was the victim of some sloppy San Bruno fielding as EFS scored unearned runs in the third and fourth to go ahead.

Noonan had thrown a lot of pitches in San Bruno's win on Wednesday (he struck out 10) but didn't have much zip on his fastball in this one.

EFS finally got to him in the fifth as it parlayed two base hits and four walks into a four-run rally.

"I didn't get tired," said Noonan. "I just didn't have my fastball today. I used my slider as an out-pitch."

San Bruno loaded the bases with two outs in the sixth and had power-hitting Tony Bolla at the plate. But reliever Frank Regello, who Bolla had collected three hits off Friday, plunked him on the shoulder with his first pitch.

It was probably the best thing Regello could have done. Bolla had cracked a long homer off him Friday and was eager to duplicate that effort. As it was, Regello induced Don Feblowitz to line out, ending San Bruno's threat.

Silvas, commenting on his rags-to-riches experience as a prep and Joe DiMaggio League pitcher said, "I just didn't give 100 percent in my junior year. I was lackadaisical and got cut for that reason. But my senior year I knew I could make the club so I just gave it everything I had."

Each regional playoff team is allowed to select three players each from the remaining teams in the league to bolster its roster. EFS got the first three picks and selected Bolla, Millbrae catcher Daryl Fazzio and South San Francisco outfielder Danny O'Regan.

Goulding plans to use O'Regan, a speedster, as his leadoff man and selected Bolla and Fazzio for their long ball potential.

Flying Goose coach Tom King picked Funk, Pacifica outfielder Mike Mooney and South City pitcher John Vincent.

Ironically, Vincent did not win a game this year in Peninsula League play as he pitched well but suffered through a dreadful spell of bad luck.

"We think Vincent is the best pitcher in the league," said King.

Youth Craftsmen Honored

Outstanding craftmanship and workmanship by 70 youths from 15 schools in the county were honored at an awards ceremony at the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta last week.

The honors are the result of annual industrial art and occupational education competitions at the Fair. Winning entries are on display throughout the Fair in the Community Building.

Parkway Junior High School and South San Francisco High School tied for honors in exhibiting the most entries.

JUDGING was done under the Danish system of merit.

First places in architectural drawings went to John Varni of Burlingame High School, and four El Camino High School students: Charles Gordon, Kurt Smith, George Petroff and Victorio Salvatin.

Second-place winners are Laurie Greich of South San Francisco High School; Daniel Wu of Hillsdale; Stan Feinberg and Jerrold Harris, San Mateo High; Fred Guerrero and Jim Sanchez, El Camino High. Third place: Brian Everson and Todd Baltor, Burlingame High.

First-place awards in drafting went to Andrei Shabalin and Julien Augstin of El Camino High; Richard Lillo, Mike Plut, Henry Jackson and Javier Castro of South San Francisco; and Mike T. Wolf of Aragon High.

Second place: Chris Giranis, Henry Jackson, J. Arturo Fregoso, Juan J. Diaz and Mario Gonzalez of South San Francisco; and Nelson Au of San Mateo High.

In the electrical competition, Jeffrey O'Hara of College of San Mateo took a first while his classmates, Ron Navarra and Darel Mero, placed second and Patrick S. Ng and Rich Schikore were third.

PARKWAY Junior High had four first-place winners in the metals competition; Tony Ortega, David Stark, Todd Galli and Mike Fav.

John Keating of Westmoor High, Richard Lillo of South San Francico, Richard Halseth of Southwood Junior, and John Buljan of Hillsdale also took firsts.

Parkway students Kevin Stalker, Dennis Jessup and Mike Fay took seconds, as did Brett Arnott of Westmoor, Tim Gascoigne and Byron May of South San Francisco and Scott Green of Sequoia High.

FIRST-PLACE winners in the woods competition are Ante Buljan of Hillsdale, Paul Bet, Don Odenthal, and Bob Manseau of Aragon, and Jeff Bonaguidi of Parkway.

Seconds: Richard Halseth of Southwood; James Torrise, David Iversen, Bob Dayton and Greg Donati of Aragon; and John Sciarra and Oscar Huerta of Parkway.

Patti Chandler of Crestmoor High placed first in the graphic arts division while her classmates, Ron Glass and Clifford Grech, took seconds.
